A meeting of those interested in Agricultural Preparedness in Old Lyme, brought out some o've hundred people to hear Prof. W. L. Slate, Jr. of Storrs, talk on Potato Growing. Prof. Slate emphasized the necessity of spraying the potatoes against blight and potato beetles. For this purpose Bordeaux mixture of a 4-4-50 strength should be used with five pounds of arsenate of lead for the bectles. For smaller areas some of the commercial ready mixed sprays may be used such as pyrox. In either case the spray should be applied as a very fine mist and the vines kept covered from the time the plants are six inches high
